Geology and Wine – The Taste of the Earth

(in preparation of the Languedoc excursion)

Abstract on separate page

JUNE 14TH – 17TH: GEO-GASTRONOMIC FIELD TRIP TO THE LANGUEDOC

The trip will focus on siliciclastic sedimentology (including basin geo-history, reservoir architecture, and fractured reservoirs) and Permian Rotliegend analogues (fluvial, aeolian) and the Lodève petroleum system. Because this is the geo-gastronomical field trip, special attention will be given to local cuisine and wine, including a visit to a vineyard. We will be guided by local expert Michel Lopez from the University of Montpellier.

Price: 299 Euro (excluding travel to Montpellier). Details can be found on the PGK website.

JUNE 18TH: ANNUAL BBQ AND MINI-SYMPOSIUM ON ARCTIC DRILLING

The annual BBQ will be held at the Carlton Beach hotel jointly with the SPE. We have two speakers on the subject of Arctic drilling:

Philip Dyer (Shell): Arctic potential – risks and opportunities

Faiza Oulahsen (Greenpeace) : Arctic drilling: not worth the risk

Pre-registration with pre-payment is being set up by SPE, but is not available yet. Please keep an eye on the website. Details will be published in the next newsletter.

SEPTEMBER 20 – 22ND: EXCURSION TO THE DINANTIAN OF THE ARDENNES

The September field trip will focus on the Dinantian of the Northwest European Carboniferous Basin (NWECEB). The Dinantian is receiving increasing attention due to several facts. First of all three wells for geothermal energy have been drilled in an under-explored part of the Netherlands, close to the city of Venlo. It came to many people as a surprise that huge karstic horizons were encountered in the Dinantian limestones. These karstic horizons may provide new insight in the palaeogeographic development of the Dinantian limestones and lead to the identification of new prospective areas in the NWECEB. Secondly, several E&P companies and EBN and TNO are currently exploring the distribution of bituminous Dinantian limestones (e.g. Geverik Member) as a source rock for shale gas, in response to promising first results from drillings in the UK.

The September field trip will on Wednesday 18 September be preceded by a lecture (in the monthly PGK schedule) by EBN on their research results with respect to the Dinantian in the Netherlands and North Sea. The field trip will visit the geothermal well site near Venlo on the way to the Ardennes. Evert van de Graaff, an experienced petroleum geologist who was on-site during the drilling of one of the geothermal wells, will accompany us during the trip. He will link the Dutch subsurface situation with the outcrops in the Ardennes. In the Ardennes we are further guided by Edouard Poty, who has gathered great experience in the Dinantian of the Ardennes and knows the best outcrops to visit.

NEW MEMBERS

Applications for membership have been received from Willem Abels (retired), Anna Gruenbauer (PanTerra), Mark Hollanders (Shell), Shizhuo Liu (Shell), Michael Obermaier (Shell), Maarten Pluymakers (TNO), Paul Stroosma (UvU/ Maersk). If no objections are received prior to or during the next meeting, they will be admitted as member of our society.

Abstract

What is the relationship between geology and wine, how specifically does “terroir” influence the properties of wine? Is it possible to taste the differences in geological composition of the subsoil in wines? We venture out onto the boundary between myth and reality, between geology and winery.
